ASSAULTED AND ROBBED OF $100

Reuben B. Rose Victim of Assault in Gettysburg Wednesday Evening, Bolt of Silk Taken. Four Arrested. Two Fugitives.

Reuben B. Rose, 60 years of age was beaten and robbed Wednesday evening at the stable in the rear of the Globe Hotel, his face being terribly battered and about one hundred dollars removed from his person. He is a resident of the county living about a mile from Table Rock.

Five men are said to have been connected with the affair, three of whom are now in the Adams County jail while two others, James Bowers and "Allie John Jones" are fugitives, the latter having left town said morning after hiding all night in the bushes near the race track west of town.

The three men in jail are Harry Smeltz, colored, giving Asylumville, Illinois, as his residence; James Brady, of Peoria, Illinois, and "Slim" Dempsey, no alias, of Gettysburg. Smeltz was formerly a boarder at the stable and Thompson porter at the hotel. Brady and Smeltz were arrested Wednesday evening by Detective Wilson and Thompson this morning by Chief Sheafer.

On Thursday Chief Sheafer arrested Rosie Cook, colored, charged with aiding Pittsnoff and Jones to escape by driving them in a horse in the vicinity of Emmitsburg. Authorities in that section have been notified to look out for the men for whom a warrant has been issued.

While all the men are implicated Mr. Rose gave a description Reuben Pittsnoff as that of the man who first struck him.

All the parties are said to have been drinking at the Globe during the evening and Rose had exhibited a roll of bills of which his "friends" took notice. He had been separated from it rather freely and was not at all stingy when treating others with drinks.

Later Rose and the five men went to the stable where he was knocked down and robbed. He was then unconscious of his watch being overhauled and he was also found without his money. While in a helpless condition from the shock and beating he received of his roll of bills which he declared contained about $100.00. After placing the matter in the hands of the local officers he was taken to a home.

Next morning Mr. Rose's body took and seen other documents were found in the stable.

Detective Wilson had no trouble in locating the arrest of Brady and finally but Pittsnoff was so violent to be found. His companions say he had about $60 of his person when he was last seen. When searched they had very little on Smeltz's person and if they got any of the booty it was so small as to be not worth mentioning.

It is said that after the affair Pittsnoff and Jones went to the track east of town and spent the night there. In the morning Jones stole a team at the Pfoutz livery and met Pittsnoff at the track. It is alleged, driving then over the Maryland line and were recovering here. Jones, it is about half past eleven and was arrested later by Chief Sheafer.

SPECIAL REGISTRY STAMP

COUNTY PEOPLE ATTEND PICNIC

Eight hundred Adams Countians from the northern and western sections of the county took the fifth annual picnic at Mount Holly Park Wednesday. The event proving the success which it has always been in the past.

The special train carrying the picnickers left Gettysburg at 7.16 with seven coaches on board, and all the stations along the route large crowds were added. Seven cars of men greeted us at some of the stations. The train carried fourteen cars and was twenty five minutes late. The regular train during the day took many more and the crowds was not far from reaching the record.

Mount Holly Park was in its usual prettier and has never had more attractions than this year. A large roller coaster, boating, dancing, bowling, ball, fishing, moonlight sailing and many other things combined to make the day one of pleasure for the people who were taking their annual day off at the Cumberland County resort. The accommodations for which Adams County housewives are famous were not forgotten and the baskets and the refreshment part of the day was not in any way slighted.

While about ninety five per cent of the picnickers were Lodgemen the other five were at the picnic for the entertainment of the rest. Nothing short. Candidates were more or less numerous and everyone in attendance their claims Representatives of the Gettysburg candidates were there and told of the various distinctions to be offered in the big race August 14 to 19.

LINCOLN MONUMENT

The Commission on Fine Arts, having recommended the erection of a $60,000 statue to Abraham Lincoln, in Washington take the form of a monument, Secretary Dickinson has written acts in the capital and the Washington Park Commission, in a letter to the memorial, the report says, has not yet been considered.

"It is impossible," reads the report, "to recommend any site in connection with giving to a monument of the size and importance of the Lincoln memorial complete and undisputed consideration unless a large area, together with a certain dignified selection from competing structures or sites, can be secured and devoted to it. Upon no other possible site in the City of Washington can this be done so secured as completely as upon the Potomac Park Mall."

The commission found that a monument such as is proposed should not need to be so high as to bring it into competition with the Washington monument, since it would stand on "broad plats surrounded by an architecture of hills," and would be so placed and as impressive as upon a hilltop.

ROAD SURVEY IS COMMENCED

Gettysburg to Harrisburg State Highway Survey Started on Wednesday. Commissioner Says Little Time will be Lost.

Surveys on the Gettysburg-Harrisburg road were started Wednesday at Cumberland Valley Park, the Market street bridge, Harrisburg.

"The survey for the Gettysburg road," said Highway Commissioner Sadler, "was placed in the hands of Chief Engineer Foster, but owing to the illness of his wife he has been unable to get here this week. Engineer Charles H. Bates, of Scranton, began the work last Wednesday on the Gettysburg route.

"On Monday I propose to send out all of the fourteen engineers of the department and will work on the survey of the biggest of the main highways until they are finished. The engineers will have in charge three or four corps, and within thirty days I hope to have the work of road building here [illegible] will going in all parts of the state.

"There will be forty or fifty gangs of men on the roads by October 1, and this way the work before the department will be completed by the first of the year. Then, on the principal highways is started, surveys on the lesser main highways will be started.

"The total of work under the new road law will be completed this year," said Commissioner Sadler. "There will be little time lost after the opening of bids and the day when the work begins."

"I took up the matter of forest preservation with the head of the forestry General Bell and he told me that the department would like to have some work going on near where there are forests. The forests are about thirty, and it will be advisable to have the roads built in these sections ones, and in other cases it will be necessary to wait for the more comprehensive scheme outlined in the 1911 bill."

MARK FOR BUSHLINE

Joseph Bunz, residing in Bushlinestown, has been the victim of a number of chicken thefts during the few years. The first time that his chickens were stolen he placed a mark upon, who the thieves broke open a number of boxes and took the contents, shot one dozier. At the next time a number of other valuables had been wrapped in a bundle, but the thieves were not to be found. They could get away with the plunder. Bunz has placed a mark upon each of his dwelling but were very likely that the thieves will not be so wise as to steal from the premises. the Monday morning Mr. Bunz went to the premises, but the supposed burglars took nothing with them, as their load was more than enough.

GREAT DAMAGE DONE BY HAIL

Adams County Visited by Worst Hail Storm in Many Years. Crops Ruined. Hundreds of Turkeys and Chickens Killed. Other Damage.

The worst hail storm in a score or more years passed over Adams County Saturday afternoon and evening, a path about 4 miles and a half wide and doing hundreds of dollars damage to the corn, wheat and apple crops while hundreds of chickens and turkeys were killed. Windows were broken and other damage resulted.

The storm, during its visit through the western end of the county, was accompanied by a severe wind which diminished as it proceeded with the hail increased in size and violence. The large apple orchards of Sheely Brothers near Cashtown were visited by the storm and specimens of the fruit knocked from the trees while others were bruised and damaged.

The storm passed within a half mile of Monterey and knocked down state brick down the gable and ruined garden truck. Further south the storm increased in severity and scores of windows in houses in that vicinity were broken. The ruins of the hail storm in a few minutes and the damage were greatly alarmed. The storm swept on for about twenty minutes passing rapidly over the section.

ENTIRE FIELDS RUINED

Although the western end of the county suffered severely, by far the greatest damage was done in the vicinity of Hunterstown and New Chester. Whole fields of corn were cut right off or uprooted and were appearing when the farmers looked out upon their fields on the morning. Even on the ground on term that they were beaten by the storm. Those who lived in the direct path of the storm state that the hail was the size of a hen's egg, but a dozen can be got from fields examined and the size of what was on Friday evening the most pessimistic are even prepared for what has yielded in many years

While the corn in the belt of the storm was entirely ruined those fields on the edge of the path suffered very extensive damage. The wheat, hence, of your Easter's, received that his forty acres, of which about not knocked down, were practically torn to shreds and all of the grain will be right conquered in that of his neighbors. Mr. McKeeney's loss is not escaped the heavy damage done to the others in that neighborhood.

The oats suffered just as severely as the corn, entire fields being practically worthless and the prospects for a crop of any recovery. The damage can be estimated in the thousands of dollars as were the Friday night counted on reaping handsome harvests from this year's labor found it all destroyed in twenty minutes time. The fruit, especially nearer is view of the short a heard and boy plan.

POULTRY KILLED

Hundreds of turkeys and chickens were killed during the storm, many being on trees and fences and any other available place, the fowls seeking shelter entirely at the mercy of the storm which swept suddenly over the county and scores of turkeys and chickens were found Saturday lying dead beneath their comfortable roosting places. Young, of near Hunterstown, lost his entire flock of turkeys, 150 in number, and all of his chickens killed. Frank Eckenrode, of Hunterstown, and Edward Kitzer had stations killed by the hail. In Mr. Kitzer's case the window panes were broken. John Arnoldnagh had 60 pounds of bees in his house while twenty-five were broken at the home of Herman Hoffman. The other residents living in the storm belt suffered equal loss.

When reports of the storm first became general it was feared that the fruit, particularly the apples, crop of the belt might have suffered heavily but the storm passed by so quickly and all the orchards in that vicinity escaped.

LARGE HAIL

The hail was unusually large. Falling the size of good large hickory nuts, one bit of the hail was sufficient to kill instantly the young turkeys of the boys and many dobbler worth of chicken fowls were lost. Its pelting was also also accompanied the storm but no damage is reported from the storm.

The storm was follow ed by a good rain drop in the basements and this assisted the terrace found much of the hail remained. Mr. Paul Bank, of New Chester, stated that when he went to the fenced sufficient hail on his grove to shovel it up in half bushel baskets. Others said that they could have got barrels of hail had they thought of it. Everyone has known after it had fallen. It was a rare but realized.

DOUBLE RUNAWAY ON TOWN STREETS

A double runaway in town on Saturday caused a lot of excitement and narrow escapes from serious injury which was escaped and no one was hurt.

Charles Shank, of Biglerville, was in town with a team and wagon and left his horse standing untied. A trolley car frightened the animal and it started full speed for the Square. The horse turned into East Middle Chamberburg street upsetting a pile of boxes in front of the Schatz store when it got too close to the pavement.

At the C. S. Hartman meat store the horse collided with a team of C. S. Hartman which was standing in front of the place. The impact freed the Shank horse from the vehicle to which it was attached, the animal ran down to the livery stable of Holtzworth and Lau.

Mr. Hartman's horse was frightened at the noise and commotion caused by the runaway. It started down Chambersburg street, but was caught by the bridle by Shenk horse. Mr. Hartman's horse went to the top of Seminary Ridge where it was caught and its wagons were only slightly damaged.

ONE ARMED MUSICIAN DEAD

Well Known Band Leader, Who Was Also Known throughout a large portion of Adams and York counties as the one armed musician, died at his home, 145 Locust hospital, Lancaster, at 8 a. m. on July 4, from heart disease, after an illness of about three weeks. He was aged 51 years, 7 months and 11 days.

Mr. Kuhn was a son of the late Jacob and Sarah Kuhn, formerly of near Bonneauville, and later of Hound Valley, Adams county, where he was born. After the death of the father, the family removed to Lancaster county, where the young man had his right hand severed while at work in a mill, being caught in the cylinder of a threshing machine which he was feeding. Mr. Kuhn, undaunted by this misfortune, determined to overcome the handicap and succeeded in becoming one of the most expert musicians in the state. He was a member of the old Abbottstown band, the Hound Valley band, Gettysburg band and at York was one of the leading musicians of the Centre Square band as well as all instruments with the left hand. He composed a number of compositions, that furnished music for pieces in which he played.

He is survived by his wife, who was Miss Maggie Fesser, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Fesser, of Petersburg, and by the following children: Miss Ida E. Kuhn, of Lancaster; Mrs. Harry Spangler, of Gettysburg; Mrs. Harry Hoffman, of Hanover; Misses Elizabeth, Nora E. G. Trostle, of Castleton and Messrs. Jacob F. and Charles Kuhn.

She was a daughter the late Joseph and Hannor Hoke, of Hamilton township.

LARGE CROP OF SNAKE STORIES

More Snakes Found in the County than for Many Years and Many Stories Follow. Dogs Win in Battle with Reptile.

An unusual abundance of snakes of all kinds, but especially copperheads and rattlesnakes, has been their appearance in the county this year and big crops of snake stories have been raised.

Many county people have slain large numbers of the reptiles Edward Stamer, living on the Octorara farm in Menallen township, has killed twenty three copperheads and one rattler this summer. He neighbor, Jim Sloane, put a bounty of a dollar on the way also. Mr. Slower had one of his sons bitten by a copperhead and saved it with difficulty.

Jacob N. Rice, West Alto, has two dogs that robob a rattler with a sound up to hunting for it rather frequent. Saturday afternoon however, the fight was carried to them. One of the canines was doing away when a big black snake came down from the mountain and, seeing the dog in front of it and coiling itself around it before the dog knew what was happening to a very few seconds there was a big fight in progress. On the one side the ghost, biting at the reptile, and twice in every few seconds the snake off the snake's folds, and the snake mainly maintaining its grip. The other dog ran to the house for the owner and he rushed to the scene. He passed for a moment expecting to decide on his line of attack, and then he might be some help in separating the back and hit it half through. The reptile loosed its hold on the pleasant and both dogs then savagely attacked the snake, making it a hopeless fight long it to pieces.

Morris Brown young son of the late Harry Brown, captured a rattle snake that measured over four feet in length sweep, near Glen Furnay. He was out with his uncle, Lewis S. Brown. He is reported quite expert on the game reserve of the state, where Mr. Brown was placing boxes for wood duck birds, when he came across the snake He will keep it in the cage for the benefit of those who wish to see it, and then he will kill it and skin it for a hat. This makes the fifth rattler he has killed this season.

The cow milking blacksnake story has made its appearance in the county line from York County. A blacksnake over six feet long was seen on side of Cherries Reilly's farm, near Goodyear, in Jackson township, and was chased by Mr. Reilly's sons, who were unable to capture it. It is believed that the reptile had been stabbed with from the cows which were in the barn at this time or was overcome with fear. Mr. Reilly had found that his cows had been milked before he arrived.

CHESTNUT BLIGHT

The chestnut blight, which has done so much damage in New York State and in the eastern part of Pennsylvania, has been reported in this mountain

It was believed this scourge had escaped but the State forest academy students, who examined the trees in the woods near the Ohi Forge, discovered unmistakable evidences of it there.

Fortunately the blight has not attacked the trees there generally and it is far, confined to one spot.

The students will call one of the academy boys here assigned to make a study of the situation and report on it. The blight and they will get to the woods, cut down the trees that are most zealously attacked and cut the limbs of others, when that measure will prove sufficient, and haul the timber to the wood.

The state forestry commission is doing all in its power to stamp out the disease and hopes that by taking prompt action it can save the trees on the South Mountain.

FINED $23.50 FOR SPEEDING

Heavy Fine Imposed on Edgar Miller for Violating Rules Governing Automobiles on Avenues. Marshal Made Arrest.

Edgar Miller, of York street, was arrested by United States Deputy Marshal J. S. Bushman, for operating automobile on the avenues and other of streets, and given a hearing before United States Commissioner Raymond T. Topper when imposed a fine of $23.50. The minimum fine is $20 and the maximum $100.00.

Miller had received a number of warnings about exceeding the speed limit in the streets, but paid no attention to a charge of running his machine at a rate of forty miles an hour. He was also accused of being impudent to the police when reprimanded and of failing to keep to the right of the avenues.

It is stated that this first arrest will likely be followed by those of other offenders who persist in failing to observe the rules of the National Park.

The practice of failing to drive cars on the right side of the road is considered a source of danger and it is supposed, the reason for the guards decision to make the arrests and the severities being that driving in the wrong direction is serious still a step down there and thus prevent proper passing.

The guards have been the objects of much fault finding when they have warned autoists about observing the rules of the avenues and the government determining that the violations should cease, decided to employ more drastic measures and the arrest of Miller followed.

ABOUT THAT BURIAL

The Hanover Herald owes an explanatory printed a portion of The Gettysburg Times account of Thursday's issue in paper and then adds the following comment:

Up until we came across this item in the Gettysburg paper we were under the impression that Hanover was the Gettysburg field. Our Thursday's issue contained a notice that Mrs. Hoffheimer went to the battlefield, and when she reached there—or returned home—the Gettysburg Times is the place for their information.

We now know the reason—our boys were "Johnnies" and not "Yanks" as heads have succeeded against the Gettysburg team for the world's title in several delegations of players and fans have visited the battlefield during the coming time. Friday morning—still, we are unable to say whether or not evidently there is something eloquent in the street sweepers.

We had our staff skirmishing around every old spot around town, but all the local scouts were back or somewhere else. Finally, the editor and we were compelled to go to press without the desired information.

AMENDED WOOL BILL PASSED

Democrat-Insurgent Coalition Victor in Senate.

DEFEAT HOUSE MEASURE

New Act Would Reduce Ad Valorem Duty on Raw Wool to 25 Per Cent; Tuft Way Vote It.

Washington, July 22.—A coalition of Democrats and Republican insurgents in the United States senate, working with perfect precision, passed the La Follette substitute to the Underwood wool bill by a vote of 48 to 43.

Every Democrat and every Insurgent voted for it. The result is a personal victory for Senator LaFollette, but it is doubtful if the bill will ever get to form it goes from the senate.

Representative Underwood, chairman of the ways and means committee of the house, declared after the passage of the LaFollette compromise that no bill would be acceptable to the house Democratic caucus the Under wood bill. The LaFollette bill, he said, was the basis of compromise, certainly duties of 15 per cent on clothing and about 35 per cent on carpets.

Democrats Regard Duties as Protective

The house Democrats regard these duties as protective. The Underwood bill carried but 20 per cent on raw wool, with corresponding duties on manufactures of wool. The Democrats sought to get an agreement with Senator LaFollette on a basis of 30 per cent on raw wool, with corresponding duties on products thereof, but it was found that the 30 per cent measure could not have been passed.

The object of the coalition is to embarrass President Taft, and in the view adopted object, as stated by the Democratic caucus. Democrats would positively have refused to support a bill carrying a 30 per cent duty on raw wool. LaFollette bill but for the belief that President Taft would veto it. They have been told that Mr. Taft will sign no bill carrying a duty higher than the tariff board reports.

The plan is to put the bill up to the president, have him veto it and to do so will injure him with the Republicans.

The Underwood wool bill and its amendments were voted upon in the same order by the democratic-insurgent agreement. The Underwood bill was defeated and the vote of 36 to 55.

The senate then, with the plan of action agreed upon, voted upon the democratic LaFollette bill. Democrats voted after the vote by which the Underwood bill was defeated, and the motion was carried by 48 to 31. Three more Insurgent Republicans joined the compromise bill of the coalition, which fixes the duties on raw wool at 25 per cent instead of 65 per cent, as in the LaFollette and other bills, and the duties on wool manufactures accordingly.

The ruling began after a running debate, in which Senator LaFollette was the chief figure, with a sometimes speech.

The first vote taken was on the original LaFollette amendment. This was voted down, 14 to 66, all the republicans present coming from the Insurgent faction.

Then the Democratic house bill, as amended, was put to a vote and was defeated, 44 to 36, the two Republican factions joining hands for the instant to defeat the Democrats.

Allies With Democrats

Having obtained a record vote on the Underwood bill, as passed by the house on June 20, by a vote of 221 to 101, the Democratic-Insurgent coalition made by Senator LaFollette to reconsider the vote by which the bill was defeated.

The fact that Senator Martin, the Democratic leader, endorsed the motion for reconsideration and made a declaration that an understanding had been reached between Democrats and Insurgents, and the motion to reconsider was carried, 46 to 31.

Senator LaFollette then offered the substitute measure of his original amendment as a compromise between the house bill and the original LaFollette plan. Democrats and Insurgents had agreed upon the vote, and put it through in short order.

MANY TRUST SUITS PLANNED

Department of Justice Preparing to Enforce Law.

HAS ABOUT 1000 COMPLAINTS

Secret Service Agents Are Now Gathering Evidence Against Alleged Monopolies All Over the Country.

Washington, July 22.—The department of justice is planning immediate prosecution of all trusts or monopolies which do not promptly take advantage to obey the Sherman law as it has been interpreted in the Standard Oil, tobacco and powder trust cases.

Attorney General Wickersham is authority for the statement that all such will be brought before the courts as soon as proceedings can be instituted against them.

To assist the department of justice in the government's activities, being carried on under the Sherman law, as interpreted by the supreme court, a thousand complaints of an alleged trust is going on in a dozen states at the present time.

By this priority the government expects to observe the spirit of the decisions of justice and put prompt action.

The attorney general's analysis of this policy in then the government will have it in its power before the end of the calendar year probably a dozen sufficient cases to have the supreme court decide manner of success.

The policy under the government's antitrust actions may be divided in to two successful courses, one being that the law, as interpreted by the supreme court, and the other according to those whose the additional question of whether the present anti-trust law is satisfactory.

Under the latter heading against the anti-trust trust and the proceedings against them, the department has brought present questions regarding patents.

Attorney General Wickersham is authorized to say that he is not responding to the reports that the Standard Oil company from Peoria and that Russia refused.

Britain Cannot Intervene.

London, July 22.—Sir Edward Grey, the secretary of foreign affairs, stated in the house of commons today that the return to Persia of Mohammed Ali Mirza, the deposed shah, is a matter for Persian government, but that Great Britain has assisted in securing his return to Persia and could not press Russia to intervene more than previously because England had urged non-intervention.

SLAY BROKER IN HOTEL

New York, July 22.—William Henry Beckham, a wealthy retired Wall Street broker, seventy years of age, was found dead on the floor of his bedroom in a hotel, murdered, apparently by burglars.

The body was covered with bruises. There was a deep wound over the right eye and finger marks on the throat. A washbowl was overturned and coffee in the mouth as a gag.

The police believe that Beckham surprised the burglars before they had time to rifle the room, unless, as one theory is, that they were sent there by some one who had employed the room to get some papers from the safe.

STEAMER RUNS ON ROCKS

Yetlo, July 22.—The steamer Empress of Britain, of the Canadian Pacific railway line, stranded on a submerged rock in Seto Naikai, Japan, while attempting to round the southern point of the island of Shodoshima, on to Yokahama. The 125 passengers were all saved.

Wireless calls for assistance from the scene of the wreck from the Empress of Britain were received early in the spring of 1907. Submerged rocks of Seto Naikai, the Inland Sea of Japan, which is swept by dangerous currents and treacherous fogs. Steamers from Vancouver, B. C., on July 16, and will be followed by the Empress of Japan, leaves, forty miles to the west and Victoria.

As soon as a word of the accident was received in Tokio, Count Okuma, the minister of marine, dispatched cruisers and tugs to the scene. The steamer carries 125 passengers, the number of the crew is not known.

The cruisers took off the mails and passengers. The passengers were safely landing the passengers to the mainland. The Empress of Britain is a vessel of 14,000 tons displacement and a school building and has been in service for four years.

The steamer's bottom was badly damaged by the rocks and it is said it will take three months' time to repair the vessel.

AVIATOR BREAKS ENDURANCE RECORD

Johnstone Remains Aloft 4 Hours, 1 Min., 5 3-4 Sec.

Nassau, N. Y., July 22. — St. Croix Johnstone, the Chicago aviator, broke the American endurance records for both altitude and distance when he remained in the air for four hours, one minute and five and three-quarter seconds, circling the aviation course of the Nassau Boulevard aerodrome.

Johnstone was compelled to alight when his 30 gallons of gasoline were consumed because of engine trouble. He still had enough fuel for another hour.

The previous American record, made at Los Angeles on Jan. 20 last, was held by Parmelee, who remained 3 hours, 25 minutes, 40½ seconds.

Johnstone's altitude and endurance run with his own weight, Johnstone rose to about 600 pounds at which point he fell, which was made at a very high rate of speed, and he was forced to volplane to the ground, in a perfect glide.

Although his motor was working well, Johnstone said he could have remained in the air longer.

"I had taken some sandwiches on board," he said, "and I could have stayed up there all day and came down to get something to eat."

ROTHERMEL'S TIPS BIGGER

Just Because Passayunkian Looks Like Vice President.

Washington, July 22.—"Vice President Sherman met Senator Bradley, of Kentucky, in the lobby of the House offices.

Senator goes to Kentucky with me for a few days, Mr. Vice President," said Senator Bradley.

"Can't do it—too busy," said the vice president.

"Why don't you send a substitute?" asked Senator Bradley. "I see lots of men around here who look like you."

The vice president set to him with his fists, knocked him down and kicked him.

"Well," said Mr. Sherman, "I don't know about that. I have been told about Representative Rothermel, of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, but you know—he had a lot of trouble when he came to Washington. Every body has taken him for the vice president and he has had waiters in the hotels have spotted him so that he has to give 50 cent tips instead of 10 or 15 cents. It does not work that way with me, because I look like Taft. I just take them out and buy a glass of beer."

SAYS WAR CLOUD IS SERIOUS

Asquith Declares Situation in Morocco Is Difficult.

EXPECTS PEACEFUL SOLUTION

France Is Prepared to Go to Limits of Conciliation, Premier Says, But Will Not Great Territory.

London, July 22.—Premier Asquith said in the house of commons today that the situation in Morocco is difficult, but he asserted a point at which it was bound to be settled by the powers interested before a solution was found.

Mr. Asquith said that Great Britain was not a party to the conversations proceeding between France and Germany, but constantly and sincerely desired to see them result in an arrangement honorable and satisfactory to all parties to the agreement. Nothing, he said, would be left undone by the government to bring about a peaceful solution.

The premier said that the government had brought that result about by delegating to make it clear that, failing a satisfactory settlement, Great Britain must become an active party to a discussion of the question.

A too close analysis now of the terms of the proposed settlement might provoke recriminations which the premier said it was desirable to avoid. The question of Morocco bristled with difficulties, but the government entertained no pessimistic position there and hoped that the powers would have hastened the negotiations between France and Germany to a successful issue.

He would, however, have been a grave mistake to let the situation drift into a condition in which the differences might cause surprise and regret.

Peace in Conciliatory Mood.

Paris, July 22.—The conversations between France and Germany continues, but the latest reports received here are favorable for a peaceful solution.

The latest advices indicate to go to the limits of conciliation, but cannot agree either to surrender Morocco or to betray other interests of France. Germany has agreed to the principle of the international conference suggested by France and Great Britain, to which the affairs of Morocco.

After hearing Representative Lindbergh's explanation of the work of the committee decided to report favorably the Underwood wool bill.

The investigation will be made public. Representative Lindbergh said the house committee on banking and currency will begin its inquiry.

Representative Weeks, of Massachusetts, a member of the committee on rules, appeared before the committee to urge the Lindbergh resolution. While he did not oppose the inquiry, he said that the time that had been set was a thing as a "money trust." He said that he thought a full hearing might be a good idea to have the men who are interested appear.

BAILEY QUITS COMMITTEE

Resigns From Privileges and Elections Because of Pending Methods.

Washington, July 22.—Senator Bailey declared that he would withdraw from the committee on privileges and elections. He made no explanation to the senate, but his announcement was accepted without comment.

SHAKE IN DINNER BASKET

Man Carried Four-Foot Rattler Over a Mile.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., July 22.—Carrying a large rattlesnake for over a mile in a dinner basket, Frank Hoffman, aged 21, took McGinley, of Bear Run, to his home. Hoffman is one of the young's growth when he felt a sudden tightening around his left arm and a terrible agony shiny of the reptiles.

Hoffman had caught the snake in the mountains and the latter was inspecting some bushes when the snake struck at him. Hoffman, instead of cutting most of it placed the basket in which the snake was.

When he started for home he swung the basket over his arm. As he came to the road he felt a sudden commotion in the basket directly over his head. He opened to see a large and angry rattlesnake coiled for a spring and a fierce fight. It was four feet long and had six rattles.

The Harvest Moon

COPYRIGHT, 1909, BY AUGUSTUS THOMAS

CHAPTER III.

BEFORE seven ensembles had bowed themselves away to the idea of wealth there was no one more delightful, easy going traveler for the person with gentle taste than old La Champagne. Years in an antiquated hulk, plying somewhere between Havre and South American ports, carrying only those passengers that the Americans with his superb nobleness would describe as "second class."

There really was at one time a first, second and third class traffic, but the Americans, with the absurd indifference as to use to spread its money and as to where he belongs, has made the distinction. The Americans have swept big liners in extensive tidings and demanding unlessening comforts.

It was almost a family portrait of La Champagne. The night before the ship arrived Carlotta had asked all of the passengers to do him the honor to dine with him, and the dinner that meant a great deal more on board this old ship than the organized dinner menus on the average ocean liner. There was no question that it was champagne, there was a little bit of Gallic purity in the wine, but altogether Gallic informality. There were no head boats and no stewards to serve.

All day one paid the fleu's tait or wora in Carlo for a bowl of soup.

Graham Winthrop had been over in Paris for a few days, and it was only that he had been obliged to take this slow going vessel instead of one of the faster steamers, as his natural American appetite was becoming impatient. The first few days had been days of indescribable loneliness. There was lacked for a soul on board the ship who appreciated in any degree what he was to find out, but himself. There was a Frenchman, a Spaniard and a French count and a couple of South American travelers from whom he would never call a line, people that "one doesn't see at one's club."

His fair knowledge of French and his proclivity for bridge led him to spend most of his evenings in the associa room with three Frenchmen who admired his talent and served his French intermittently. The animals that two of the men played were Graham Winthrop.

"You have written plays," he engrossed in the center of the bridge table.

M. Varin smirked and said, "I should rather say, amused myself, for I could not write plays."

"And you Alexandre says you are one of the greatest dramatists in France."

Varin laughed pleasantly and raised his hand deprecatingly. "I have done my best in recent years to write plays for France since the days of Victor Hugo. That is not always the right attitude of the dramatist, for sometimes the dramatist is jostled in doing the things that he would like to do by the public, but though it does not help his country, sometimes it does not help his art, nevertheless."

"We have never had any of your plays in America," said Winthrop as he took the dropped and sanitor side of Varin's answer as a compliment.

"America," said M. Varin, with a smile, "is a very interesting field. Accordia in that she is growing more wonderful every day, the wealth thereof is gathered absolutely to herself, and there are no traditions to hold. The great art is never produced by any nation that has absolute dominion by that nation. My plays pertain to the life of the Parisian boulevards sometimes, but, with less finish than was of the older nations, and therefore no if I say that my plays, your dramatists are, from our point of view, serious writings, but not of the question. The plays of your best dramatists would not succeed in Paris, and the best plays of my conferees in France do not succeed in America for the same reason."

It was all a trifle too technical for Winthrop, who had come to look at the thing of their work the consideration and the commercial success of it, and he was drawn in his observation, but the appearance that had been paid to his fine from acute understanding had fascinated him, and for the rest of the voyage he and M. Varin were walking companions.

When they sat down to the captain's dinner on the last night out he had begun to feel that there was in him an undeveloped intellectual power—the hortighe and sometimes unfortunate result of association with intellectual men. In addition to the usual courses of the conversation during the voyage reflected a bit of the light that had been another academy, dedicated to literature, but as an adventure in letters it was unique, in fact, a universe, different from that which exists in the world known by the clattering cabs immediately on the Boulevard des Italiens.

"You come from where, monsieur?" he said after a few minutes' acquaintance with himself, forgetting the while Jules' encouragement, which was on the table before him when the young poet entered "From Illinois, monsieur."

"And you are—pray of age?"

"Twenty, monsieur."

"And you look to poetry as a profession or trade?"

The old man's eyes twinkled, he gave did not seem to be in a hurry, was more like but careful, one has one's own affairs, and the things of the world were petulantly and, "you have only poetry?"

Interjection of the least of the Parisian world, with a flattering air, would be the acknowledged answer to such a question, but Jules looked at him quizzically.

"I am a Frenchman—as least, my father was—therefore I am not to be afraid of finishing. That we are not destined to the things of the world because we are the Prodigalities of our heritage. You are a Yankee, and you presume you do not realize that with us the poet must be poor, must be unpractical, to suggest something or do something that is not. I have examined here nothing whatsoever to do with poetry. Therefore, I am led to that this is all wrong; that a lad, when she should be laughing, is a suppliant to you the cathedral at Rouen or the English fog or that she is not the to preach a sermon on anti-Semitism or one-thirty-second of an inch of sort. We have his grandest artists in Paris, and they are not all poor, but they are not worthy, but they will read it nevertheless. If I am to be poor, and I am a coutting that is palatable.

"Your poems are impossible, impossible, and that you should have sent them to me discloses to me that you have been our Frenchmen are also impressionists. Your poems are impressionistic. They will be published in the Parisian Review. They will be read by the people of Paris, but they will not be read by the people of Paris, but they will not be written more philosophy, societies, and the like, but they will be read. They will not be written more philosophy, societies, and the like, but they will be read. They will not be written more philosophy, societies, and the like, but they will be read. It has a coutting that is palatable.

ARRESTED JUDGE FOR SPEEDING

Washington Judge Accused of Driving Automobile at Rapid Rate Through Streets of Abbottstown. Arrested by York Police.

For speeding his automobile through Abbottstown Edmund R. Cochran, a judge of the municipal court of Washington, Delaware, appeared in an automobile court in Wednesday when he was arrested in York. It was charged that the judge had exceeded the speed limit in turn in his automobile through the Adams county borough at the rate of 50 miles an hour. Judge Cochran and party had visited Gettysburg during the day.

A message was sent to York police headquarters there giving the number of Judge Cochran's automobile and ordering his arrest. Motor Cycle Policeman Linebaugh was detailed to arrest Judge Cochran as he came into the city. The patrolman stationed himself where he thought the machine would pass and as the judge's automobile came in the information was conveyed to him he was put under arrest and would have to go to police headquarters.

"But I am Judge Cochran, of Wilmington, Delaware," the Delaware magistrate protested.

"And I am the bicycle cop of York," was Linebaugh's rejoinder

Then the judge smiled and went to police headquarters where the charge which had been brought against him was explained.

The judge declared that there was some mistake as his machine was not running more than 18 miles an hour. He was stated that a constable from Abbottstown would arrive at 8 o'clock to do the evening and to tell him that Richard Cochran, an attorney of York, and cousin of the judge, would come with him and provide the necessary bail for a hearing.

Both the mayor and Attorney Coohran were at City Hall awaiting the appearance of the Abbottstown constable but he had not arrived with the warrant at last word from that town, and, convinicing that he would not appear at all, they bailed out Judge Cochran by this time he at his home and if a warrant is to be served the constable will have to be sent to Wilmington, Delaware.

DIED IN CALIFORNIA

She was a daughter of the late Joseph and Lydia (Gilbert) Hamilton and was born on the old Stitzinger farm in this county, now occupied by Frank John S. Stitzinger, August 21, 1857. She is survived by one son, Lieut. Ross Brenneman and a sister, Miss Annie Stitzinger, both residing in California.

Dr. Brenneman was an aunt of Dr. J. E. Stitzinger, and Mrs. T. Z. Lilly, Gettysburg, Mrs. Joseph Sheely, and near Littlestown; Mrs Milton Kohler, of Littlestown, and Jesse and Harry H. Stitzinger, of Oxford township.

DRAWBUCH CUTS FAMOUS OLD SHOP

Noted Inventor of Rifle Sights Leaves Clerk's Mills Workshop where he has Toiled for Many Years. Telephone Inventor.

Daniel Drawbaugh, the "Edison of the Cumberland Valley," by many honored as the real inventor of the telephone, and indisputably the father of a host of other labor lessening devices, is about to abandon his workshop, popularly known as the "Old Curiosity Shop of Sheely's Mills."

Daniel Drawbaugh is an old man, in the age of humanity is "getting on," but he strenuously denies that he intends to retire from active work. It's only that I find the walk from the house near to my work shop too long to bed weather," he explains.

But nobody except Drawbaugh himself will ever know the heartbreak the abandonment of the old shop will cost him. Birthplace of countless ideas, home of a thousand inventions, place where the aged inventor asserts the secrets of the telephone were first born, and where the original patent where brain and hands worked quietly, assured by neighbors of the world of mankind through the perfection of new and marvelous mechanical devices; every workbench, board, every notch in the workbench, every familiar tool and utensil is a memorim for the man who knew them through an entire generation, a long span of despair, of failure and triumph, and is now at last to say to them farewell.

But Drawbaugh is a stoic and he will tell you calmly and with no tears that he is going to leave that little shop, dormant of its beloved workshop "in favor of something to be long and busy life and nothing to be remembered by."

Just a few days ago the old building was the scene of great excitement when it was purchased by Congressman Martin E. Trapp, Mt. Holly Springs, who finished and inventions and hundreds of tools which the great inventor would still soon be moved to a new shop at Mt. Holly Springs. The residence of Drawbaugh will miss the familiar figure of the "wizard" shuffling up the path the entire week either to or from his shop.

FELL INTO SULLEY

George F. Slagle, of Oxford township, near Hilltop Station, had a narrow escape from serious injury Sunday night, when he became entangled along the Western Maryland Railroad tracks, about 1 o'clock. Slagle was walking on the approach to the bridge which spans

Mr. Slagle had attended services at Valley Grove and upon leaving the church above Hilltop Station, that evening, walked down the railroad tracks to the bridge, and was surprised by the shifting of a freight train. Mr. Slagle attempted to jump aboard and not realizing how near he was to the bridge, fell into the Sulley at the bottom of the gulley. The accident occurred about 10 o'clock.

Mr. Slagle was conveyed to his home, Mrs. Slagle, of New Oxford, summoned, who gave necessary treatment. On examination it was found that several ribs had been fractured besides numerous bruises over his body.

Public Sale of VALUABLE REAL ESTATE

THURSDAY, AUGUST 17, 1911.

On Thursday, the 17th day of August, 1911, at the late residence of Jacob Bream, of the county of Adams, in Mount Joy township, of Straban township, Adams County, Pa., the undersigned will offer at public sale by virtue of an order of the Orphan's Court of Adams county, the following described valuable real estate, to-wit:

No. 1. All that certain tract in Mount Joy township, in the Carlisle Pike, about 1 mile north of Gettysburg, adjoining lands of Jacob Bream, Wesley Oyler and Frank Slonaker, and containing two acres and 30 perches, more or less. It contains a good two-story frame dwelling house, weatherboarded, with a good cellar under the whole house.

The improvements consist of a large bank barn with wagon shed attached, a hog-pen, corn crib, hen house, and other necessary buildings. There is a never-failing spring of water at the door, and a well of water with pump and curb at the barn. The farm is in a high state of cultivation, and is well watered, having a stream of water flowing through it. There is a young orchard of choice fruit on the premises. The property is now in the occupancy of the owner, having been fixed up for a home for himself and family, and will please call on the undersigned residing on the premises.

Sale to be held at 1 o'clock P. M., when terms will be made known by

W. F. GILLILAND,
Executor.

Miss Lillian Bing has returned to Baltimore after a visit of several days in Harrisburg.
